Special Council Meeting to Consider Schools, Roads, Storm Drainage

A special meeting of city council will be held Monday, July 21, to complete the agenda left over from last Monday's session. One of the topics discussed will be a preliminary subdivision plan for the school sites adjacent to the Baltimore-Washington Parkway. An 80-foot right-of-way is provided for the perimeter road running north-south through the school property. The plan shows Northway Road (Sanitary Fill road) east of the perimeter road as planned to be abandoned and shows the dedication of the city landfill property to the school board. The plan also shows the recent purchase by the school board of a 10-acre parcel of land along the northern boundary of the original parcel 2 property which will be used to accommodate the junior high school.

City Manager James K. Giese has noted that the plan does not call for extension of Hamilton Place to the perimeter road. As presently shown, the only route to and from the senior high school would be on Northway Road. Giese has asked council to recommend to MNCPPC the extension of Hamilton Place to the perimeter road.

Proposed Office Site

Another subdivision plan to be discussed is for the property proposed to be zoned for offices and a motel-convention site at Springhill Lake. Two parcels (A and B) are involved north of the Capital Beltway and west of Kenilworth Ave. Parcel A consists of the 22.8+ acres proposed for office building construction. Parcel B consists of 7.7+ acres being proposed for C-2 commercial zoning as a motel-convention center. The plan shows 80-foot right-of-ways for extension of Cherrywood Lane on the north side of the Beltway. Cherrywood Lane would eventually become part of the perimeter road.

A second 80-foot right-of-way is shown for a street which would run from Kenilworth Ave. at the city cemetery west to Cherrywood Lane.

Storm Drainage

The council will also take up storm drainage problems. Giese has noted in a memorandum to council the storm drainage problems created by the original construction of Greenbelt. The Federal government ran the storm drains from houses, parking lots, and streets downhill away from the developed areas and constructed outfalls in the undeveloped wooded areas. From there all the water surface-flowed to the normal stream channels.

Now the wooded areas below GHI have come under ownership of others and have been developed. In a few instances the storm drains from GHI have been connected to storm drains constructed in the newly developed areas. In a number of other cases, however, no special measures were taken to provide for the outfalling water from the uphill storm drains.

At various times city has used its forces to undertake some corrective measures. However, Giese, said, city policy has been inconsistent. The city had received options from earlier solicitors that drainage of surface water is the problem of the property owners themselves and that it was the responsibility of the owner of the downhill land to provide for the taking care of the surface drainage water.

Giese listed four areas where particular drainage problems have arisen. (1) Four homes on the north side of Greenhill Rd. at the end of the Lakewood subdivision; (2) 3 court of Crescent flowing down to 21 Lakeside; (3) University Square Apartment development near 8 court of Ridge (4) Jewish Community Center from 12 Ridge court. In none of these cases has any type of easement been provided to the city for the providing of storm drainage facilities.

Another matter that will come up is the appointment of judges and election workers for the September city council election. Giese has recommended to council that one judge and four workers be appointed for each of the three polling places.

COUNCIL APPROVES POOL PASSES TO HARDSHIP CASES, 3 OTHERS

by Elaine Skolnik

In the good old summertime, city council usually plays to an almost empty audience. Not so last Monday night. The house was full when council approved a motion which would in essence give City Manager James K. Giese discretionary authority, upon request, to grant pool privileges to Greenbelt residents claiming hardship. The motion would also permit continuation of the issuance of free passes, not to exceed three at a time, to the boys living with and under the tutelage of Greenbelt resident, Eric Peterson.

A petition signed by 99 residents requesting the institution of a pilot recreational program for the disadvantaged, and the review of admission policies and guidelines were left in the lap of the next Council which would take office after the elections in September.

At the previous Council meeting on June 19, Peterson requested permission to purchase a family membership for use by himself and six youngsters from the District of Columbia whom he had been tutoring. Council noted at that time that the granting of a family pass would be contrary to established policy and, until the questions of general policy were resolved, authorized the city manager to temporarily permit the use of the pool without charge where a hardship existed. Giese reported at Monday night's meeting that six passes have been issued to these boys and another pass to a Greenbelt resident. Not all of the passes, however, have been used by Peterson, who told Council on Monday that he plans to have groups of three boys living with him for two-week periods.

Confusion Reigned

The final vote came after a prolonged discussion which left both council members and the audience confused. Contributing to the "where are we now - what happened?" state of affairs were a series of motions, amendments to motions, withdrawals and motions left unseparated.

An early motion which created the most controversy included the granting of swimming pool passes to disadvantaged non-residents. Councilman Dick Pilski objected to the proposal as being too broad in scope. The final motion, which deleted the reference to non-residents, did not come to a vote until the air was cleared that its intent would permit the continuation of previously issued passes to those boys who would be staying with Peterson after the present group of three leaves.

Pilski later said he favored the motion but voted against it under the impression that it included non-residents. Councilman Leo Gerton also voted against the motion, preferring a broader grant of discretionary authority to the city manager.

Sentiments varied among the nearly 70 persons present who expressed views on the Peterson request, on the granting of free passes to disadvantaged residents and non-residents and on the possible establishment of a pilot program for disadvantaged children to utilize Greenbelt's recreation facilities.

Discussion "Con"

Some citizens expressed concern that the issuance of free passes to non-residents was unfair to paying patrons and pointed out that the pool should be a self-sustaining operation. They felt pool revenues would be reduced, thus endangering financing of the bond issue. Others expressed concern about overcrowding at the pool and that Greenbelt would be providing services that other jurisdictions should assume.

Others who disapproved felt that too much responsibility would be placed on the city manager and staff in determining who could or could not pay. It was suggested that church and fraternal organizations subsidize the free passes.

Discussion "Pro"

On the other side it was pointed out that only a few free passes would be involved, namely to disadvantaged Greenbelt residents and the Peterson charges. Many felt that the whole matter was being ballooned out of all proportion and that the free passes involved would hardly threaten the financial position of the pool. In any event, it was argued that the number of free passes or the number of participants in a pilot program for disadvantaged could be controlled so as not to overburden facilities. Other Greenbelters saw this as a continuation of Greenbelt's tradition of helping the less fortunate.

Other Action

Appointed to the Parks and Recreation Board were the Reverend Kenneth Buker, representative of the Golden Age Club and Robert Barton, president of the Student Council at Parkdale Senior High School.

GHI Board Meeting Considers Current Projects and Policies

by Sandra Barnes

After numerous reminders to each other that Greenbelt Homes, Inc., board meetings are now supposed to be streamlined and members are no longer supposed to speak on tangential matters, the regular board meeting of July 10 managed to dispose of topics on the agenda by referring some to appropriate committees. Still, the meeting lasted until 10:45 with an executive session to follow.

The board approved the expenditure of not over $1500 for the production of a sound filmstrip which would introduce new and prospective members to the history and present situation of GHI and would also present a view of the future of the corporation.

Painting policies were again discussed with manager Roy Breashears seeking clarification on the new procedures. For instance, will GHI supply paint to a member who wishes to paint oftener than every three-five years? Should members be discouraged from painting too frequently because of the problems which thick layers of paint create? These questions, as well as others, were referred to the Maintenance and Standards Committee.

In view of the changed circumstances in bank rates, GHI will re-consider its capital improvements program at a special meeting, Thursday, July 24. Some programs are already underway and it is a question as to which others need to be handled immediately.

A new sticker will be issued for the boat and trailer park which will bear the renter's space number. This is expected to alleviate the problems incurred when one person parks in another's space. Mobile Homes will not be permitted in the lot, which was designed for recreational equipment only.

The parking committee will re-consider possible surfacing of the trailer court.

All townhouses except one now have buyers. It is hoped that GHI will not have to go outside the corporation in order to sell the remaining unit. It is also hoped that the houses will be completed by Oct. 30, labor problems and weather conditions permitting.

Navy Band Complains Of Park Conditions

Criticisms concerning the Lake Park bandshell caused the director of the Navy Band unit, scheduled to play Tuesday evening, July 8, to call off the performance. But Greenbelters who had gathered to hear the concert were not sent away wholly without music. The Navy's vocal group sang a few selections a capella.

City Council at its Monday meeting instructed City Manager James K. Giese to write a letter to the Navy Department expressing council's unhappiness over the Navy Band's refusal to perform. City officials were perplexed by the objections to the condition of the bandshell. They noted that it had been in good condition for the July Fourth concert of the Greenbelt Concert Band. Apparently some unnoticed dry rot—aggravated by the weekend rains—had broken through in occasional patches in the flooring of the platform. The charge, that the seats were not clean enough to sit down upon was denied, since a handkerchief wiped across them was not soiled.

A third complaint—that the lights were inadequate—was also denied by city officials. They asserted that the lighting was effective as far as reading music was concerned. They admitted, however, that the lighting did not highlight the faces of the performers, as professional stage lighting does. More lights were ready to be installed on the poles before the stage, however, and were expected to be up before this week's barbershop quartet concert. Repairs to the flooring were also made.

The Police Blotter

Around midnight, July 7, PFC Alvin Hall noticed two suspicious young men walking around the parking lot at Springhill Lake. On investigating further, he discovered that they were drinking beer and that one was underage. He also discovered in their possession jump wires and other tools used to steal cars. Officer Hall advised the youths of their rights and took them into custody. As a result of further interrogating, the police feel they have solved 12 or more stolen car cases from the Springhill Lake area.

Four cars were stolen last week from Springhill Lake, and all four have now been recovered. One car was found in the Bowie area, its insides burned. A second burned-out car was recovered in Upper Marlboro. A third, partially burned, was found submerged in the lake at the Agricultural Research Center. And a fourth was recovered in good condition on Route 301 in Upper Marlboro.

Another car stolen from SHL was found abandoned on a railroad track and was subsequently struck by an oncoming train.

The youths, one 16 and the other 18, are both from Bowie. They have been charged with unauthorized use of motor vehicles and their case will be presented to a grand jury. One youth is now out on bond and the other has been released in the custody of his parents.

In the process of recovering a transmission the pair is alleged to have stolen from one car, and sold to a Hyattsville person, PFC Hall dropped it and broke his leg.

One June 27, the police were called by the SHL pool manager who reported that nine boys were forcing entrance into the pool and one had punched and kicked one of the chaperones. The chaperone wished to press charges. As the boy was taken into custody, some of the others in the group jumped the police officer, attempting to free the prisoner. One SHL employee was bitten and some pushing and shoving ensued with one officer's helmet being knocked off. In order to disperse the group the officers used a tear gas streamer. Two arrests were made as the group went its way.

All of the boys were in the 18-20 age category. They were originally discouraged from entering the pool premises because they were observed to have liquor in their possession and they were over the age limit for the party.

In another incident at SHL, a man was charged and arrested for indecent exposure.

Forty-one bikes were registered in the bike Rodeo at SHL.

Fire Prevention Tip For July

by J. Wenrich

While you're giving your home a thorough Clean-Up, keep an eye open for trouble-causing electrical hazards.

This is an important safety measure because electrical defects are the third most frequent cause of fires in the home.

Here are some check points to help you:

1. Look for frayed insulation and loose connections on lamps, appliances and extension cords. Don't attempt repairs — like taping over frayed insulation, for example. Replace the cord and be safe. Check, not only cords out in the open, but also those behind or under furniture where a fault can go undetected.
2. If you have any cords under rugs, get rid of the hazard without delay. Traffic and vacuuming over the spot will wear a frayed cord to the danger point. Find another way to reach the outlet, or better still, have a new outlet installed.
3. Rigging extension cords over nails or hooks or running a cord tacked down around a baseboard is an invitation to fire in your home. Any extension cord is a poor and risky substitute for permanent wiring. Bring all wiring in your home up to the standards of the National Electrical Board.
4. For a final electrical safety job,

Both are students at the University of Maryland and will reside at 9-K Southway.

clean up the fuse box. Make sure you are using only 15-amp fuses and toss those burned out in the trash. Only special circuits designed to carry a heavy load should have a large amp fuse in them.

This check list is short, but it is important. Give it some thought and take time out to see if you need any repairs. It may prove to be time well spent in the interest of your loved ones and your home.

According to the June 27 issue of the Keesler News, Biloxi, Mississippi, the world's wildest letter was claimed by Airman Alan Levine, a student in the personnel specialist course and a member of the 3384th Student Squadron. The 24-year old native of 37G Ridge, received the 205-foot letter from his "sister, nine friends and a canary" shortly before arriving at Keesler from Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. Written on 2¼ inch calculator tape, the letter, which includes cartoons in full color, and a hole, is surely one of the most condensed an airman has ever received. However it took him two hours and 15 minutes to read it and "Lord knows how long to roll it up." Alan's dad, Seymour, reports that the unique event also was reported on local television.

Kindergarten Registration

Children who were registered on May 9 and June 6 for kindergarten for the 1969-1970 year in the public school system of Prince George's County are being accommodated in space available in schools and in about eight out-of-school locations. Certain schools are still able to accommodate additional kindergarten children, and all public elementary schools are now accepting registration for kindergarten on a space available waiting list basis.

Public Works Mechanic Mel Sims was honored as the City Employee with the longest service at Greenbelt's third annual Employee Banquet held on July 9. Public Works Superintendent, A. S. "Buddy" Attick was also honored. Both of these employees whose careers span more than thirty years, received $100 gift certificates and humorous plaques. Shown in this picture are from left Councilmen White and Hoff, Mayor Smith, Mr. Sims and Councilman Pilski.

City Notes

The Parks crew has been concentrating recently on routine and special clean-up jobs at the lake park. Daily they have been screening out floating debris from the main inflow points for water into the lake. They have also been cleaning a ravine that flows to the lake between Maplewood Ct. and Lakeview Circle.

The main Public Works crew is still chiefly occupied with the contract work along Crescent Rd. All curbs, except for some sections requiring special adjustments in connection with gutter work, have now been poured between the library and the municipal building. On the south side of Crescent Rd. all excavations for curbing have been completed as far as 4 ct.

A new employee, a mechanics helper, was recently hired. He is James T. McGraw, Jr., who is moving into this area from West Virginia. He has been assisting the mechanic this week in repair of police cars and in fixing a broken equipment trailer.

With virtually all interior work completed on the Municipal Services Building, the city is still denied occupancy because of problems in the paving of the parking area. Hidden springs below the surface have made it difficult for proper paving to be laid. New tests are currently being conducted in an effort to solve the problem. In the meantime the official inspection by the office of the county Fire Marshal was carried out last week. A final aspect of the job — changes in the grading of the property around the building — will be carried out by the city crew.

Reminder To GI Students

Students attending college under the GI Bill this summer are reminded that they must return their Certification of Attendance card to the Veterans Administration during the last full month of every enrollment period, including the summer session. Failure to do so will cause payment to stop since VA computers are programmed to prepare checks only after Attendance Cards are received.

The VA also urges any student who did not return his Certification of Attendance card at the end of the spring semester to do so as soon as possible to insure renewed VA payments this summer or when he goes back to school in September.

Veterans who have questions about their status or who intend to enroll for the first time this fall are urged to contact their nearest Veterans Administration Office.

Hoff's recommendation, City Council will embark on a walking tour on Saturday at 10 a.m. of Greenbelt's wooded areas which Hoff noted were eroded and littered. He saw the need for a city-wide clean-up campaign.

Passed for first reading was a resolution to accept streets in Boxwood Village constructed by Kingsport Homes, Inc. into the city road system. A one-year maintenance bond would be required.

Also passed for first reading was an ordinance which would increase the permit fee from 4 percent to 5 1/2 percent of the estimated cost of construction work with a minimum fee of $10 instead of 4. The permit fee is used to pay the engineering firm for its review of plans and inspection of work done under permits issued by the city. It is also used to cover city costs involved in issuance of these permits.

The council decided to switch the date of the regular meeting in August to Monday, August 4. The usual summer meeting night is the second Monday of the month.

Borrowing the old heat for the new room isn't such a hot idea.

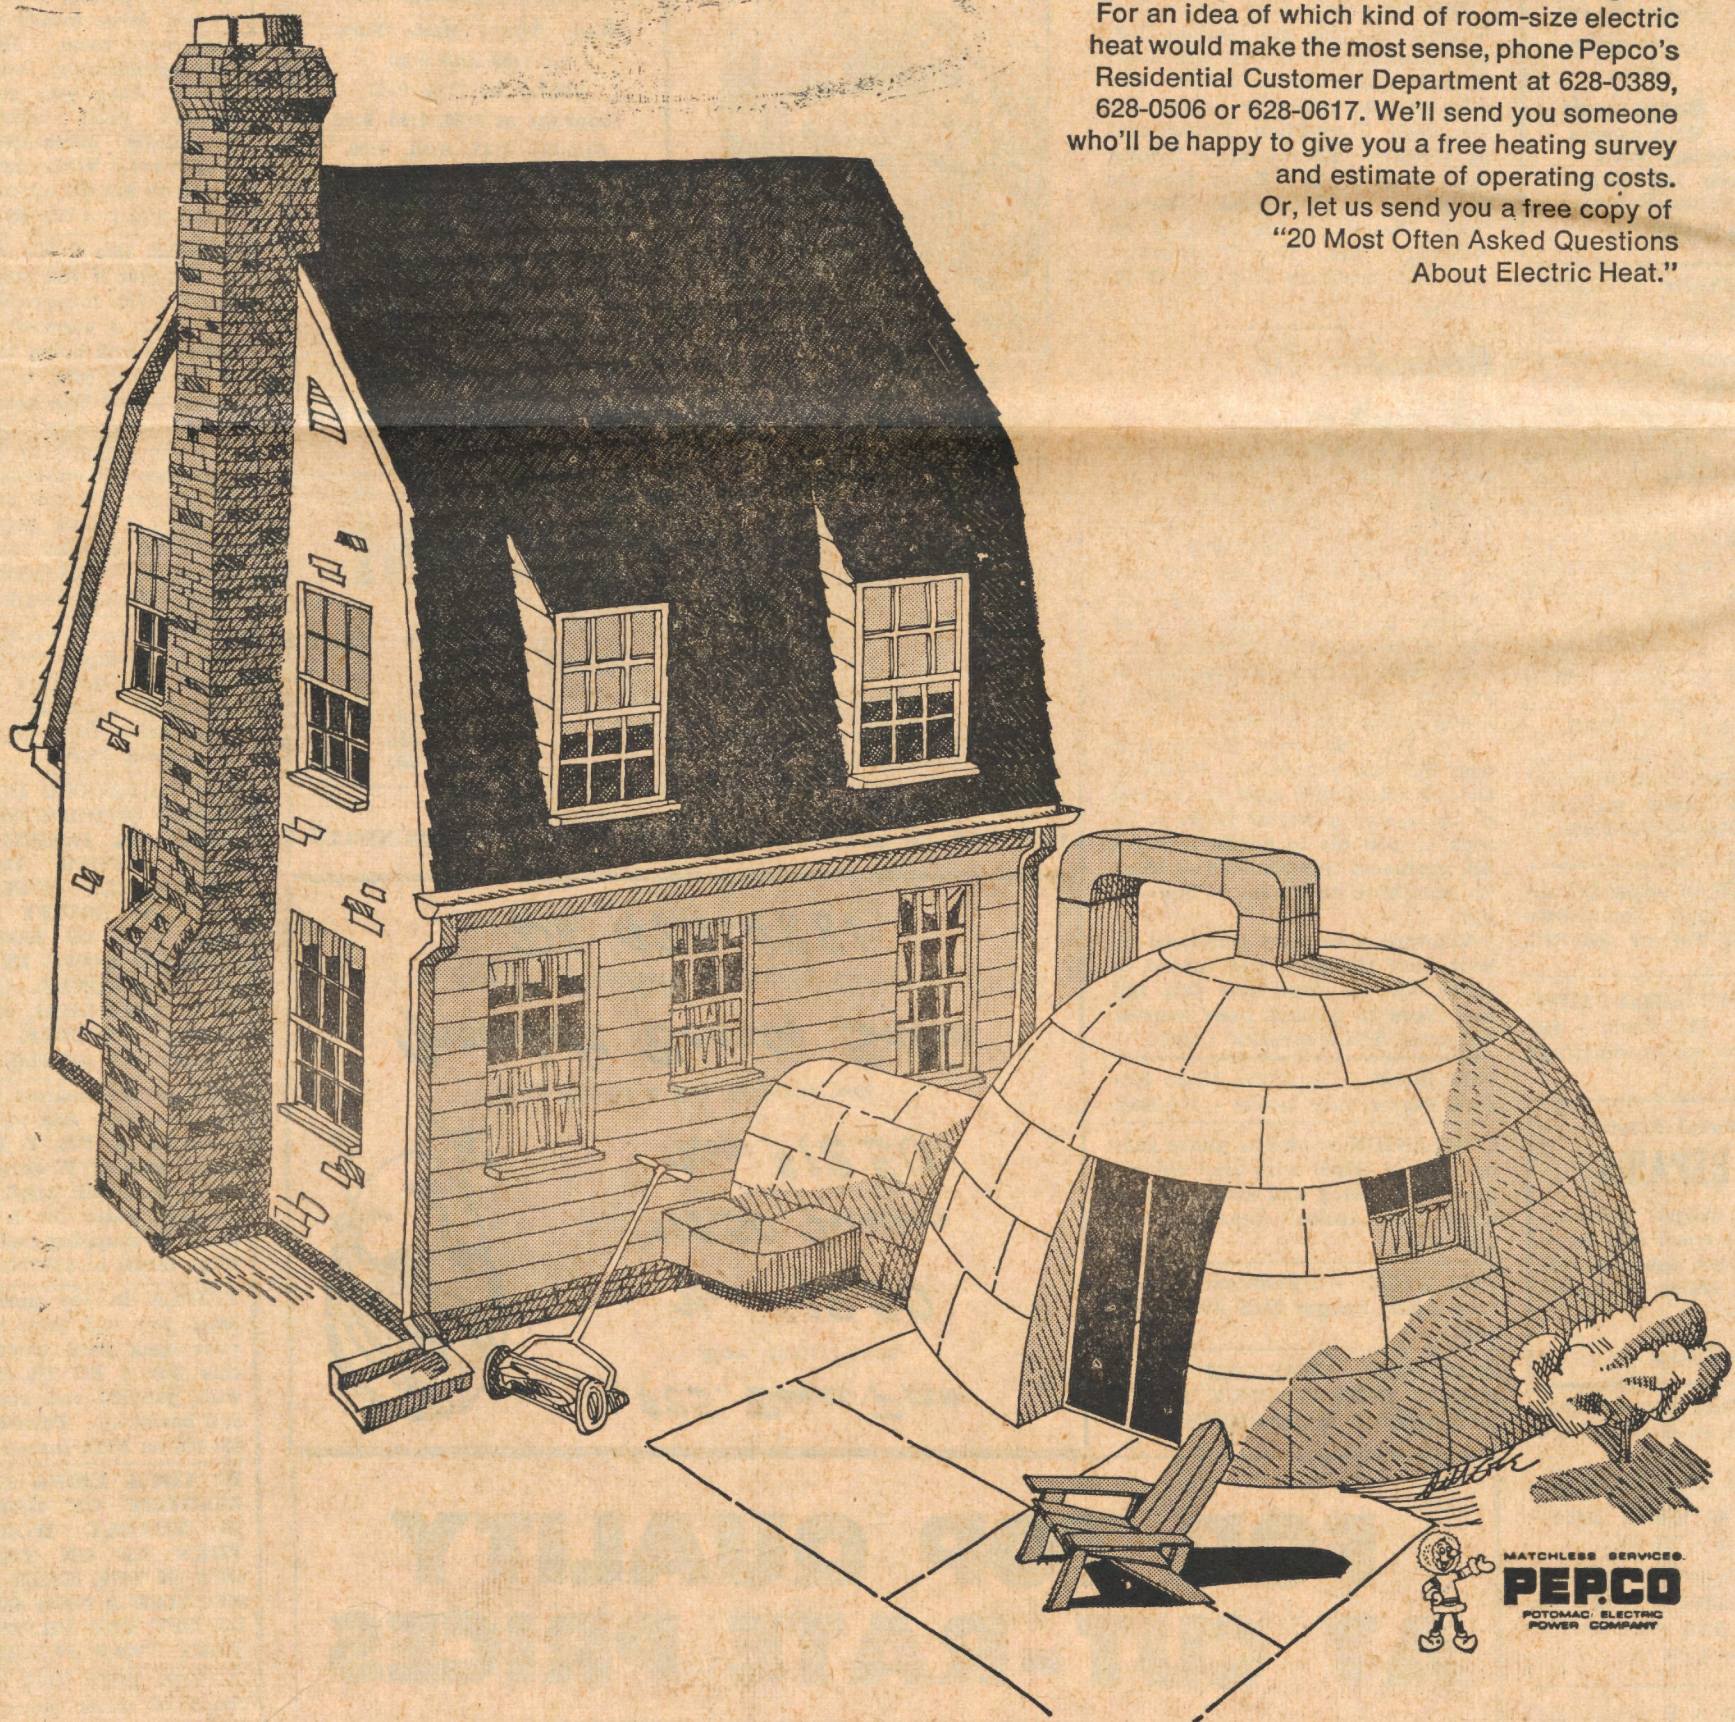

At first blush, tapping your present heat supply might seem logical.

But, come winter, the blush you'll experience won't begin to offset the decided chill you'll feel. And setting the thermostat at 80 won't help. Instead of spreading your present system too thin, add a little electric heat where it'll do the most good.

It comes by the roomful. In baseboard form. In wall units that fit flush, so you hardly notice them. In the ceiling as a hidden cable, or as a radiant panel that installs like ceiling tile.

For an idea of which kind of room-size electric heat would make the most sense, phone Pepco's Residential Customer Department at 628-0389, 628-0506 or 628-0617. We'll send you someone who'll be happy to give you a free heating survey and estimate of operating costs.

Or, let us send you a free copy of "20 Most Often Asked Questions About Electric Heat."

Add a roomful of electric heat; feel warm all over.
